“Teachers who are not familiar and at ease with the use of computers need to be trained before they step into the multimedia language laboratory with their students.” (Lee, 2001)

Students are not distracted because of digital devices. They are distracted because of the task, lack of relevance, and no real accountability.

REASONS TEACHERS AREN'T USING TECHNOLOGY

- ✓ Time (to learn how to use all the tech and to implement more involved solutions)
- ✓ Internet quality (low bandwidth, poor connections, various filters and other blockers)
- ✓ Infrastructure management (poor device maintenance, limited IT support)
- ✓ Lack of professional development and other incentives (teachers often get devices but little to no training, too sporadic)

Knowledge that teachers need to be able to integrate technology effectively into students' learning

Technological Knowledge

Pedagogical Knowledge

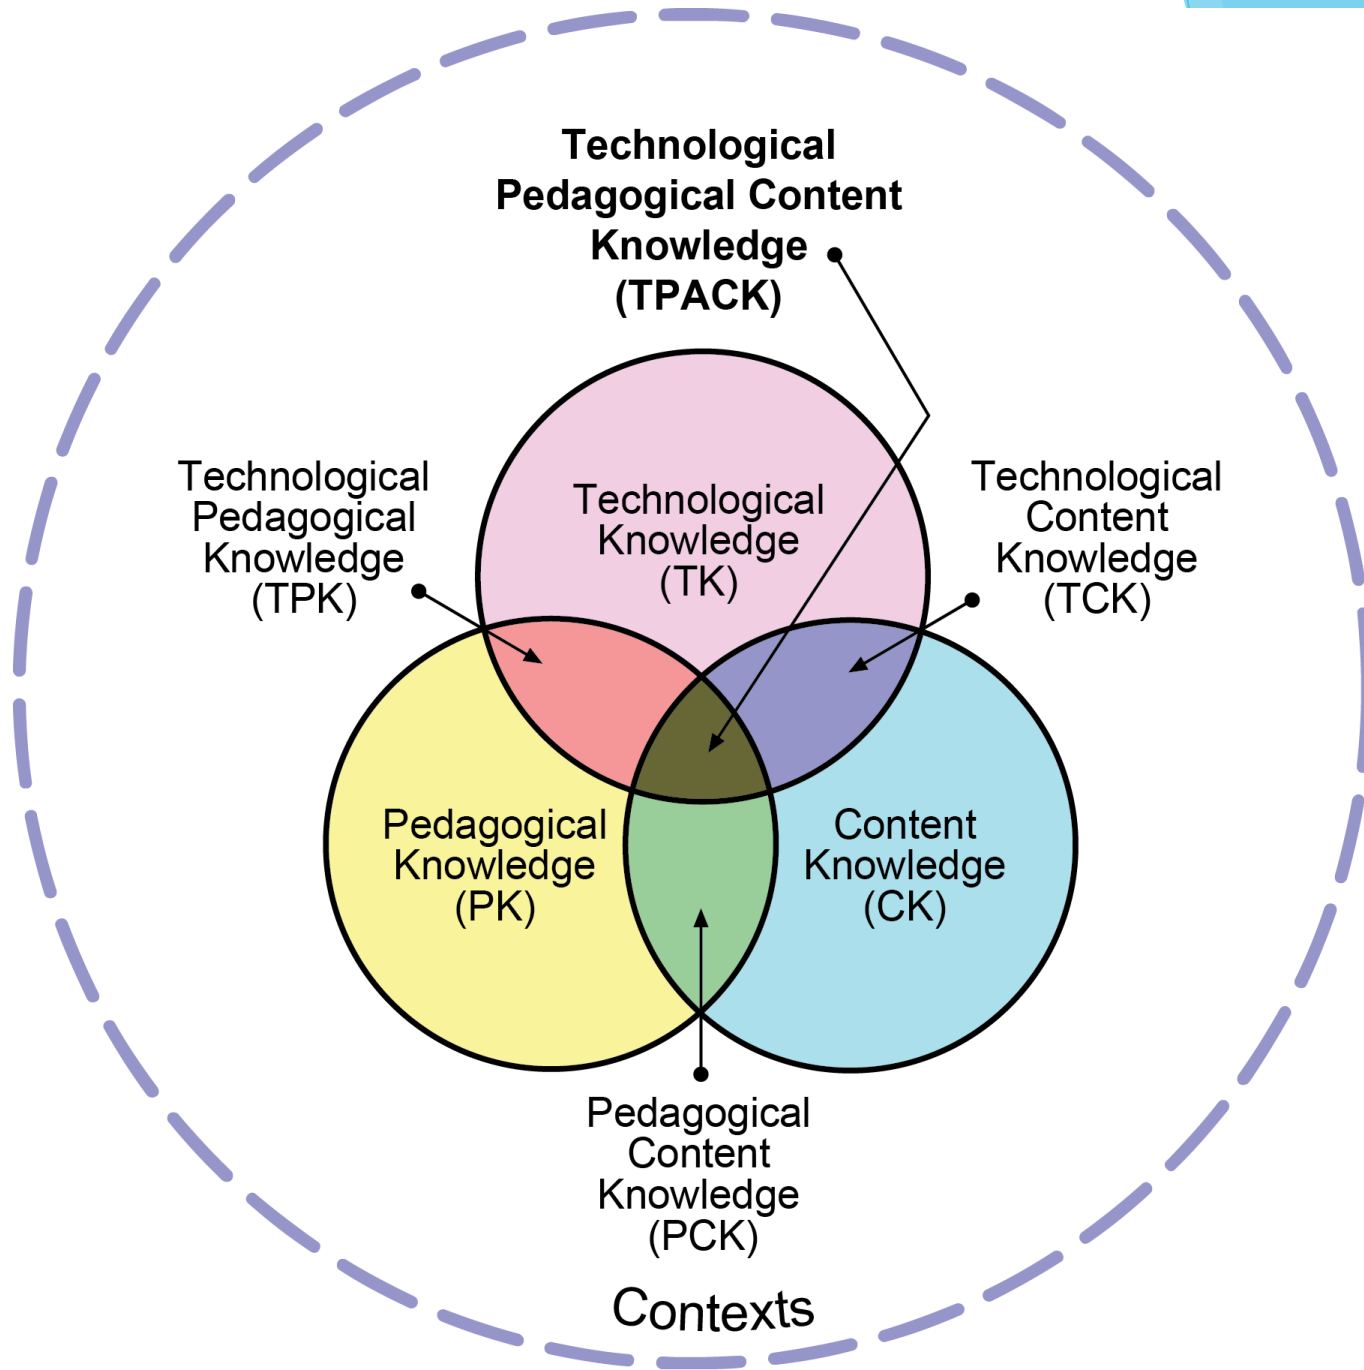

Content Knowledge

(a) select objectives

(b) identify learning activities likely to deliver the desired outcomes

(c) select appropriate tools (technologies)

When this order is reversed, and pressure is placed on the teacher to use the tool first and then select an activity to utilize the tool, student learning is often minimal

TECHNOLOGY AND LANGUAGE LEARNING

“The quality of habits, actions, and consumption patterns that impact the ecology of digital content and communities”

A digital citizen is a person with the skills and knowledge to effectively use digital technologies to participate in society, communicate with others and create and consume digital content.

In the early 1500s, the great conquistador Hernan Cortez invaded Mexico. As his men landed on the Mexican shores and prepared for battle, Cortez issued a command to burn the boats they arrived in. His men were shocked with no means of getting back to their native land they realised that their only chance of survival was to fight and win.

As drastic as it seemed, burning the boats was an act of total commitment to their long-term success. If you are serious about setting yourself up for success with tech, if you really want to let go of the old ways and move into the brave new world of digital schooling, you have to let go of some of the things that are anchoring you to the past”
